Steven Hirvi - Hirvdog
4Ridgewood Rd. Paxton, Mass.
President's List, Running, Intramural Sports

Three years ago, when we arrived at MMA, few people knew what challenges the future would bring. During our orientation, the late President Lee Harrington told us to look to those people to our left and right, as we stood in formation. He said that when we graduate in 1982, one out of three will not be present. Unfortunately, time has proven him correct. Many cadets found the academic requirements too rigorous. Others could not adapt to the military environment. Some, simply, became disenchanted after a semester or tow. Steven Hirvi does not fit into any of these catagories. He did not have the same control over his destiny.

Steve Hirvi may not graduate with the class of '82, but for the wrong reasons. One of Steve's greatest assets is self-discipline It has made him a credit to himself and to the Academy. "Hirvdog" has been recognized as an exemplary cadet since day one. No one deserves the academic honors more than Steve. Until people got to know him, they wondered about this kid who stayed every weekend, slaving for the perfect average. When Steve opens a book, he can't hear an explosion beside him, but when the work is done, it's strictly party time. As many people know, Steve is an avid and talented runner. Why? The reasons are hard work and determination. These key words describe the attitude towards everything that Steve sets his sights on.

With the challenges that face him now, there is no one whom we have more confidence in than Steven Hirvi, He has never disappointed and has often surprised us. His absence this year has been most strongly felt. We wish God speed in his recovery and expect nothing less than to shake his hand at Commencement in 1982.

CRUISE '79/CRUISE '80

SAIL WITH US

Sail with Mass. Maritime and see the world! For the Class of '82, the "world" consisted of Quebec, Bermuda, Newport and Boston. As incoming freshman, we all had visions of glamorous world travel aboard the Bay State. These were definite motivation where struggling through that long youngie year. Little did we know we would end up sailing the Empire State on a stateside cruise after the Bay State was laid to rest. With the arrival of the new Bay State, the 1980 training cruise was scheduled to visit Dublin, Portsmouth, Bremerhaven, and Boston starting in July. The new Bay State was an exact copy of the Empire State, but with one added feature- it didn't work! As July dragged, the excitement of alongside training began to take its toll on the sanity of those included. With August only hours away, we steamed down the canal minus a port of call but with a port list. Our first overseas cruise ended much sooner than we had anticipated. Anchored about a mile off Sandwich was as far as we would go. The breakdown was a complete disaster. We made the headlines, screaming for help and waving lifejackets as the helicopters flew by. After a pleasant tow down the canal to Buzzards Bay, alongside training was resumed. An evaluation of the ship's condition on August 1st resulted in the statement "The best professional opinion of the Engineering Dept. was that . . . two weeks was adequate time to resolve the problem." The ship did not cooperate with that opinion. After further repairs, we finally set sail for ports well-known!

WE WERE OFF!

ST. GEORGE

We were treated as "Buccaneers" upon our arrival at St. George, Bermuda. Two preceeding training ships had soured the island's hospitality towards uniformed cadets. A popular solution for this was hastily getting "out of uniform" once out of sight of the ship! We took advantage of Bermuda's miles of pink sand beaches and her sparkling waters to swim, body surf, cliff dive, or just lounge in the sand. For the souvenir hunters among us, Hamilton offered many small shops to satisfy all tastes, and was just a scenic bus ride away. Several of us also took the senic "walk" back, as the buses here didn't run late!

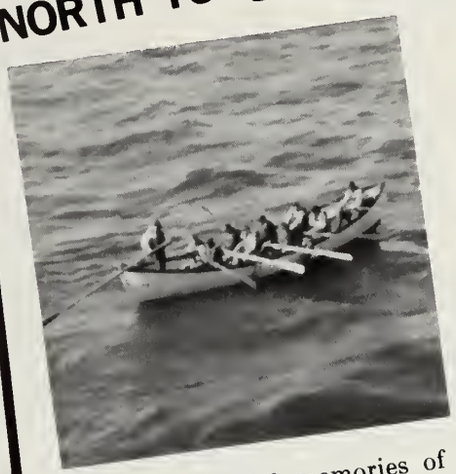
NORTH TO QUEBEC



With wonderful memories of the islands (plus a few bruises, hangovers, and stolen beer glasses) we departed the island, to their relief and ours, to head for home.

Quebec (pronounced KAY-BECK) was our first foreign port on both cruises. It took a while to get to the city from our dock, but at the end of the long journey either up the stairs and across the Plains of Abraham or across the pavement and up the winding road, our efforts were rewarded. The Rue St. JEAN awaited us, with its shops, restaurants and bars. Many a 22 ounce bottle of Molsen or O'Keefe was consumed at places like Le Taverne or Le Bistro. We walked along the boardwalk, in the shadow of the Chateau

THE OLD CITY . . . QUEBEC

Fontainbleu, past the many cannons on the old fort's walls. We left Quebec with memories of all this and more, of good times with classmates and friends.

We docked at Newport once. On the other hand, we made frequent excursions to Commonwealth Pier! The ship offered us a different view of each familiar place. For most of us, both ports meant home again, and we hastily scurried for the nearest train, bus, or car. One thing was for sure in regards to Newport and Boston- it's a lot quicker to drive to them than to steam to them!
